

Project Summary

In this project we have learned two more important aspects of the Bash: `functions`, the use of `awk` programming language and more importantly a full-length bash shell script along with `loops` and `conditional` statement, in the context mining a csv formatted toy dataset consisting of Australian cities and their crime statistics. We will re-use these commands in a more complicated format in the coming chapters.